CHERYL / WAYNE

INT. BANK - RECEPTION AREA - DAY

Wayne checks his watch. Cheryl cheerily approaches him.

CHERYL

I'm sorry, sir. We're closing now.
Did you need some help?

WAYNE

I'm waiting for a friend.

CHERYL

I'm really sorry. It's the end of the day, sir. I think everyone's gone.

WAYNE

He's still in-- (points)
--that man's office. Over there.

CHERYL

That office has been closed all afternoon.

Cheryl subtly flips the bank keys in her hand.

WAYNE

Oh. I think my friend is still in there.

CHERYL

Mm. I guess your friend gave you the slip. I'm sorry, you'll have to forgive me, I really have to lock up now.

WAYNE

Okay. Can we check to make sure?

CHERYL

Um...I don't think I have the key for that office...

Cheryl walks over to Ed's office. She shuffles through her keys.

CHERYL

I think...

WAYNE / CHERYL

She shuffles through her keys. She finds a key.

CHERYL

Oh...I just remembered. I'm not...

(Pause)

WAYNE

Sorry?

CHERYL

(trying to cover
her mistake)

The...key isn't--the office door
keys aren't on this ring.

The Preppy Man walks by, checking his watch.

PREPPY MAN

Are we closing now?

CHERYL

Yes.

(turns to Wayne)

I'm sorry, I really have to...

She jiggles the keys. A confused Wayne drags himself away by an invisible arm.

EXT. WELL-KEPT SUBURBAN HOUSE - DAY

Ed's car pulls up to a green-lawned, brown-painted, toy-littered abode.

INT. GUPPY HOME - KITCHEN

Ed steps in and sees his wife ELLEN GUPPY, 40. She uses a cane to get around. Ellen prepares a simple dinner, although she is dressed formally.

In the other room, children's giggles can be heard.

ED

Hi."

(pause)

Sorry about today.
