

Giving It Up 5 (on)

She

So, how's the therapy thing going?

He

Yeah, it's good. My shrink suggested group therapy. It's pretty cool. They drink too much coffee, though.

She

What?

He

Anyway, you think I'm bad? You should see some of these people.

She

I don't think you're bad, Ralph, just a little misguided.

He

Oh.

She

Hey, watch out for the grate.

He

What?

She

You walked over a grate.

He

So what?

She

So, what if you fell through?

He

What are you? My mother?

She

Don't bring Freud into this.

He
It's a grate. It's made of steel and concrete. Look.

She
Stop that! stop it.

He
It's not going to break.

She
Well, maybe not that one, but what about some other one?

He
There's like 3 million of these things all over the city. If I worried about each one, I'd never get anywhere.

She
Well, what about those sidewalk basement door thingies? Do you just walk right over those too?

He Yep.

She
"Yep" ? well, those can collapse. Don't you ever worry about hurting yourself?

He
I take my chances.

She
All right, well, what if I was walking with you, and one of them broke open?

He
I'd catch you.

She
But you'd be falling too.

He
You're incredible. You're so...

She
"Passionate, and like, intelligent?"

He
And beautiful.

She
You've got some line, Ralph.

He
It's not a line. I'm serious.

She
Oh, come on. Admit it, just a little bit.

He
All right, all right, a little bit of a line.

She
Yes! Thank you.

He
But that doesn't mean I don't mean it.

She
So you're sincere, but with an agenda?

He
You know. I'm up for a little more of this ego-deflating banter. Let's play hooky and take the rest of the day off.

She
What did you have in mind?

He
"Love in the Afternoon."

She
What? I'm...um...

He
It's a movie with Gary Cooper and Audrey Hepburn. What did you think I was talking about?

She
Never mind – Duh.

He
Do you want to catch a matinee?

She
Yeah. Why not?

He Okay.

She Okay.
