

MAD MONEY

1 (TIS)

1/2

SHE

You know something, I would have thought you would have been a whole lot happier.

HE

Oh, forgive me for getting insufficient kicks when somebody I'm married to commits a felony.

SHE

Don, this money doesn't officially exist anymore, that's the beauty of the whole thing. Look at it, it's worn out, it's going to be shredded. So, what do we do, we take some, we spend it. It goes to another bank. It's still worn out. So, what do they do, they pull it from the system, again. It's like we're stealing the same money over and over. In fact, it's not even like stealing money at all, it's more like recycling.

HE

Ahhh, recycling. You know the defense attorney is going to love that one Bridgette.

SHE

I'm not going to get caught. We have signals and go codes. We have a system here that works like a well oiled machine-

HE

Oh please god, tell me you are not planning on doing this again.

SHE

What? What do you think I'm stupid. Of course we are going to do this again. At least until we get out of the hole. Four or five more times, Nina gets school paid for and Jackie, I mean honestly, I really don't know what the hell-

HE

You know something, you've gone insane Bridgette.

SHE

Honey, you see a 20 dollar bill on the sidewalk, let me just ask you, what do you do? Do you walk away? No.

HE

You know, I guess it would depend on whether or no the sidewalk were locked inside a Federal Bank!

SHE

Honestly. When you have spent months cleaning their toilets, the whole Federal Bank thing doesn't seem like such a great big deal.

HE

What about the overall system of monetary flow? Hm?

SHE

What?

HE

You know that they print a certain amount of money relating to assets in other parts of the system.

SHE

Where?

HE

I don't know! But seriously, you could be throwing off the entire balance of trade. You could be endangering the dollar against the, the...Yen!

SHE

Don, I am going to keep doing this. The Yen is just going to have to take care of itself.
