EYE FOR AN EYE 1 (gk)

DETECTIVE:

Mrs. McCann. How can I help you?

KAREN:

I think we've got him . . . but we have to hurry.

DETECTIVE:

What? What do you mean "we"?

KAREN:

He's delivering groceries again. He made a delivery today to a woman and then he went out side of her house and he watched her. He even marked his territory like a dog.

DETECTIVE:

What?

KAREN:

He stood there watching her through the window while he pissed on her fence.

DETECTIVE:

Have you been following him?

KAREN:

Yes. Yes. You've got to pick him up. You've got to grab him. You've got to get him now! Right now!

DETECTIVE:

Mrs. McCann, you can not go around following Robert Doob . . . for your own safety. Do you understand me?

KAREN:

I know where he lives. I know where he works.

DETECTIVE:

I don't know how else to explain this to you, Mrs. McCann. Robert Doob is a free man.

KAREN:

Yes, he's a free man and he's a free man because somebody in the D.A.'s office forgot to give something to somebody and he got away with raping and murdering my daughter. Yes, he's a free man and he's going to do it again!

DETECTIVE:

It isn't right. I - I wish to hell it were different but that's just the way it is.

KAREN:

I want you to pick him up. I want you to get him.

DETECTIVE:

I know what you want but the fact is that I can't pick him up for standing on a street corner looking the wrong way.

KAREN:

Looking the wrong way? He wasn't just looking the wrong way. You have got to do something.

DETECTIVE:

Please. Just stay the hell away from Robert Doob. I can't say anything else but stay away from him. Hell, you already know how violent he can be. Don't provoke him.

KAREN:

I just can't stand knowing he's able to walk free . . . knowing that he did what he did. It's like he's laughing at me . . . at my family.

DETECTIVE:

I'll watch him. He won't get away with it.

KAREN:

He already has, hasn't he?
