

ASHLEY

JACOBS

Tell me what makes you think you can cut it in homicide.

BRIAN

Well, I guess I think I have good instincts, I've worked vice and robbery, I've attended half a dozen homicide seminars in the last couple of years, spent as much time on crime scenes as I could -

Rose with Ashley Switzer as she does loads of laundry.

Start.

ASHLEY

I don't know the names of who threatened him, but they were some of the regular guys he had to work with.

ROSE

Why would they threaten him.

ASHLEY

Jay used to work the container ships. And those guys, a lot of those guys take cash on the side to help move containers, you know.

ROSE

No, I don't know, sorry.

ASHLEY

Well, you know, a container full of something comes in, and they make sure a certain crew are the ones to handle it, you know, certain guys are sent to handle that particular container and steer it to a particular place, put it on the back of a truck, whatever, get phony bills of lading, they got it all worked out.

ROSE

Alright, I understand.

ASHLEY

They tapped him to be on that crew and he refused.

ROSE

And you know that for sure?

ASHLEY

Yes, of course, we talked about it all the time.

ROSE

Your husband was arrested for heroin trafficking two years ago, tell me about that.

ASHLEY

That was a screwup by the cops, they thought he was involved in a deal but he wasn't. Those charges were dropped a couplea hours after they arrested him. That was probably what started it all.

ROSE

How so.

ASHLEY

They all thought he was working for the cops, they thought that's why the charges were dropped, cause he cut a deal or something.

ROSE

And as far as you knew, he never made any deal with police.

ASHLEY

Of course not, he would never. All those guys were his best friends.

ROSE

So he wasn't working for the police, and he was never mixed up with the bikers.

ASHLEY

No, he was just a hard worker trying to raise a family and coach hockey.
