

CINDY

Don't you feel like you can kick ass now? Think about it, will ya? You drove past those creeps like a bat outta hell... and you thought that you couldn't do it!

MARTHA

I knew I could do it!

CINDY

You're so full of shit! You almost pissed your pants. "I'm freaked out!... You drive!" That's what you said... remember?

MARTHA

Yes but, it was just for a second. I didn't mean it. It was just in the heat of the moment.

CINDY

Ya, right!

MARTHA

I wasn't scared.

CINDY

You're full of shit! You were petrified!

MARTHA

I was not.

CINDY

Terrified.

MARTHA

Was not!

CINDY

And perplexed.

MARTHA

Bullshit!

CINDY

In fact, you were tremulous.

MARTHA

Tremulous?

CINDY

You bet!

MARTHA

The stress is getting to you.

CINDY

You're not getting out of this one so easily.

MARTHA

I was no more scared than you.

CINDY

Oh! So you are admitting you were scared?

MARTHA

Look, you guys are more used to it than me. You guys were chased for... what? At least 24 hours longer than me. Plus, you were shot at in the middle of the night.

CINDY

We were not shot at!

MARTHA

Oh, I thought you said you were.

CINDY

No. Just chased while they had the guns in their hand.

MARTHA

Ya, but it was after they shot someone!

CINDY

So?

MARTHA

So, my point is that you guys have had more experience at being victimized than me. It's natural that I would be a little less at ease at handling a situation, like, for instance in the underground parking because I haven't been exposed to it as long as you two have.

CINDY

So, by your theory, you will get more and more at ease as we continue our time on the run?

MARTHA

Providing we remain in a holding pattern of victimization, of course.

CINDY

Of course.

MARTHA

Are you making fun of me?

CINDY

But, in this theory of yours, it would also mean that because we have more experience than you at handling this stuff... you know the 24 hour thing, we will always be better than you at the stress management part. Therefore, you'll never really be able to be better than us. Right?

MARTHA

Well...no... You know, there comes a time where there's like, a plateau.

CINDY

A plateau.

MARTHA

Where there isn't a hell of alot more you can learn about the situation...and... you know, you have assimilated everything you can.

CINDY

And... this is where you come in?

MARTHA

Ya. That's where I catch up!