Alex passes the Manager his resume.

MANAGER

OK. Don't have any driver positions open,
but I'll definitely keep you on file.

Alex

Thanks. I know this whole area like the back of my hand, so if anything comes up.

MANAGER

I'll keep that in mind. Thanks.

Alex steps off, as we PAN OVER TO the "How's my driving?"
stencil on the back of the delivery van.

INT. REC ROOM - DAY

53

Wanting to be anywhere else, Zoe leads Jennifer past the Vending Machine.

#1

ZOE

First stop on our magical mystery tour.

A big screen TV and ping-pong table are at the heart of this room, but only a couple residents pulse about.

JENNIFER

This is like an old folk's home.

ZOE

Nah, senior centers have better meds.

JENNIFER

Pool table?

ZOE

Nope. Our sense memories equate pool tables with bars, and bars are a trigger
for a lotta people. So no pool, darts, foosball, oh, and no booze, drugs or fun,
as much as I've petitioned.

Zoe steps to the double-doors opening them to reveal
Second Chances' utopian acreage of trees and green.

ZOE

Welcome to the Hotel California.

54

EXT. BACKLOT - REHAB - DAY

54

Nine PATIENTS congregate in different cliques, as Zoe motions around the yard.

ZOE

Over there, you got your tweakars, sponsored by the letters E, X. Ecstasy
for the layperson.

Jennifer waves hello to a friendly Patient painting on canvass.

ZOE

Art therapy. Usually the first choice of the Burners, nuVo-Leary-hippies who are afraid of GMOs and hormones in their milk, but'll take acid from a complete stranger at a Soundstem concert.

Zoe motions over to a BBQ section at the far side of the fence that surrounds the perimeter. Within a heated Bocce game, BOOZERS compete against each other and the world.

ZOE

There in the cheap seats, over by the bocce, the boozers. Barstool prophets who've taken a couple first year psych or philosophy classes and now understand how the entire world works.

The Boozers wave. A couple "heys" and "what ups."

JENNIFER

If it makes you feel any better, I haven't taken any philosophy courses.

ZOE

Couldn't care less. But I'd guess you're either taking marketing or cosmetology.

JENNIFER

Music major. I wanted to do Art History, but my Dad taught music so kinda forced
me that way--

ZOE

I've already lost interest.

JENNIFER

So we've got tweakars, burners, boozers.
Where're you in the whole twisted scheme?

ZOE

Just another cautionary tale. Enjoy.

END

With no emotion in her voice or movements, Zoe steps off.

With a cane and in his Sunday's best, BURROUGHS, a Second Chances elder, passes. He's grandpa with a crippling habit.

BURROUGHS

(re: Zoe)

Don't worry, she doesn't have any confirmed kills that we know of.

Burroughs smiles and extends his hand.

55 EXT. WAREHOUSE AREA & LOADING DOCK - DAY 55

As the Vendor Van drives out of the warehouse area, a car follows from the parking lot.

56 INT. COLIN'S CAR - MOVING - DAY 56

Tailing the Vendor, Alex drives his brother's car.

57 EXT. FOOD TRUCK - DAY 57

The Vendor Van pulls off the road to park near a food truck serving various customers.

The Driver gets out of his van, goes to the food truck, and orders.

Alex pulls up in his car alongside the Vendor Van. Looking around, he gets out and approaches the van, holding a small bottle.

58 INT. VENDOR VAN - DAY 58

The door is unlocked and Alex opens it, jumping inside.

Alex unscrews the small bottle of vodka and dumps it into the Driver's coffee cup in the cup holder, throwing the bottle under the seat.

Alex turns on the truck's lights.
